

English

This week in English, we finished writing the first drafts of our explanation texts, making sure our ideas were clear and well organised. We focused on completing strong conclusions that summed up our explanations effectively. In SPaG, we revisited expanded noun phrases, practising how to add extra detail and description.

Science

We explored our topic scientist Dian Fossey, who carried out important research on mountain gorillas. We learned about her dedication to studying their behaviour, protecting their habitats, and raising awareness about the threats gorillas face.

Computing

We explored which Turtle Logo commands can be used to draw different letters and shapes. We experimented with instructions like forward, back, left, and right to see how they affected the movement of the turtle.

RSE/PSHE

In PSHE, we learned about assumptions—what they are, how they can be unfair, and why it's important to think carefully before making them about others. We discussed how assumptions can affect people's feelings and how to challenge them by being open-minded and respectful. We also celebrated Parliament Week.

PE

This week in PE, we focused on attacking skills in handball. We practised moving strategically to get past defenders and create opportunities to score goals.

Art

Not completed due to Parliament Week and Christmas Decorating Day.

Maths

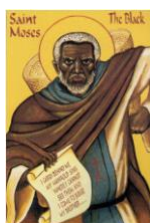

This week in maths, we explored short division and compared it to long division. We practised using short division to solve calculations efficiently, especially when the numbers were easier to divide.
